School Slit By County's New Boundary

LEESBURG, Va., June 7 (Spl).—The Loudoun County Supervisors today approved a true boundary between Fairfax and Loudoun Counties that runs directly through the Fairfax School for Negroes.

But Attorney Wilbur C. Hall, representing Loudoun County interests in settling the true boundary, said, "The two counties will reach an adjustment without difficulty."

The boundary was set up by a commission headed by R. J. Wagstaff, of Herndon, and corresponds roughly to the line separating the two counties as established in 1897.

Hall said it was necessary for accurate survey purposes to run the true boundary through the Negro high school, leaving it equally divided between the two counties.

The cost to each county for establishing the line will be approximately $3000. The true line approved today needs to be approved by Fairfax County before presentation by both county commissioners to circuit judges of both counties for approval and adoption.

The true line extends from Seneca on the Potomac to Bull Run on the Prince William line, a distance of 18.36 miles. The counties will retain about the same acreage, with Loudoun acquiring about 1200 acres near the southern end and Fairfax about the same acreage at the northern end.
