The education of the children of Loudoun county presents many administrative and teaching problems, ~~None~~ X
Our schools must move forward both with and against the times in which we live. Our teachers must stand for righteousness. They must serve as the beacons which guide the way out of the ~~dark~~ darkness of ignorance and despair into the light of knowledge and ~~hope~~ hope. They must accept and re-create in the minds of youth all of the good old and new things of life and combat with all of their powers the ~~many~~ tendencies of the old and new evils to possess the children.

Our ultimate aim in education is to teach people how to conduct themselves. The influence of the school should be for lasting good. The virtues should be extolled in the youthful minds. The school can not have as its aim keener intellectual development without discrimination. The criminal of keen intellect would be less a menace to the world without the keenness of his intellect.

The acquisition of knowledge is, of course, an important function of education. A mere knowledge of facts is, however, very ~~in~~ inadequate. Some of the desirable aims of our work as indicated in definite outcomes of child behavior are listed here. Reverence for God, respect for and obedience to parents, good manners, the ability to do things that help to make a living, consideration for the rights and happiness of others, a cheerful disposition, an ability to play and otherwise use wisely leisure time, an understanding of the care of the human body, a desire to learn and the ability to continue the learning process through life, a taste for good literature, tolerance toward ~~evil~~ people but not toward evil.

No teacher can do wrong in modeling her teaching after that greatest of all teachers- Jesus, the Nazarene.
