To The Editor:

The article by Harford Powel in your September 3 issue on "Good Jobs for Good Girls" strikes another body blow on teacher supply.

Actually, during 32 years as a rural superintendent I have felt myself to be running one of the most effective matrimonial bureaus in existance. The percentage of high-paid husbands for school teachers has been high.

I protest in the name of all prospective teachers and the children they might teach.

Very sincerely yours,

O. L. Emerick
Division Superintendent
